On motion, adjourned to meet Thursday norning, at 10 o'clock a.m., at the Crimi L. P. COGPER, Chairman Sketch of Judge Wright's Life.

Judge Archibald Wright was born in Judge Archibaid Wright was born in Maury county, Tenn., and was seventy-five years of age. He studied law with Judge Bramlett, and in 1832 was admitted to the bar at Pulaski, Tenn. In 1852 he removed to Memphis, and was associated at different periods with Judge Eldridge, Turley and Currin. In 1855 he was made a member of the Supreme Court of the State, serving until all civil business was interrupted by the outbreak of the war. Judge Wright was noted for his iron con-flinchingly the severest strain. To this was united a mind equally as strong, and thus, while not brilliant, he was enabled to expend an amount of labor upon whatever work he had to do, which to another would have been impossible. With this ability to work was combined patience and diligence to a remarkable degree. Endowed with strong common sense, he was at all times firm in the strength of his convictions, but not obstinate, and was aggressive, though never pursuing this to the point of offensiveness. All that he had to do was well done, and, with his wonderful tenacity, he never relinquished his work until the last thing was ended. The law, the facts and the witnesses he sifted well. had to do, which to another would have the facts and the witnesses he sifted well, until he got all, even the smallest detail, in a case. Without polish, or tricks of rhetoric, he was a hard hitter, winning his way by simple strength and endurance Emission way by simple strength and en-durance. Equipped as he was by nature, and study for the law, he was the equal of any man. In the conduct of a case, in his younger days, he was modest, unas-suming and agreeable to those engaged with him, courteous to his opponents and young man, in a race for the Legislature, he carried his county against a very popular man, bearing down all odds and being elected by a triumphant majority. Before he came to Memphis people were in the habit of speaking of him with Nicholson, Marshall, the Foggs and Ewins, Tennessee's greatest lawyers. Men talked about him as fit for the Supreme bench long before his mind was ever directed toward it and finally placed him there wholly with out his solicitation. It was as nearly a case of the office seeking the man as ever happened. His associates were able, but he was fully their equal, and it is not exaggeration to say that he was an eminent judge. He was unquestionably a great lawyer, and in Pulaski, Columbus, Franklin, North Alabama and Nashville, his coming always attracted attention. He was pointed out as a man of distinction in personal integrity. To all men he was the same. The frivolities of fashion, its changes and its dictates, had no more affect upon him than water upon the effect upon him than water upon the solid rock. Death, in striking him down,

The drop in the price of quinine may have been caused by the large shipments of Collins' Ague Curo into the malarial and chills and fever districts throughout the South and West, where formerly it was supposed nothing but quinine would cure. Judging from the large shipments daily of this remedy from the laboratory of the Collins Bros. THE CHAMPIONS

Tennessee. The Nashville Basebal Club Defeats the Memphis Reds at Olympic Park,

In the Presence of Twenty-Five Hundred People, by a Score of Sixteen to Two. 4

The most numerous attendance at a baseball match seen here for years past witnessed the game between the Nashvilles and Memphis Reds at Olympic Park Sunday afternoon. The estimated number was 2500, among which was a moderate representation of the fair sex.

The Nashville nine arrived here Sunday evening, accompanied by a number of their friends and several representatives of the Nashville press. Previous to the opening of the game the Nashville club, with their manager and backers, were photographed on the playgrounds. The nine, garbed in a neat fitting suit of lemonals of formed with blue belts blue. colored flannel, with blue beits, blue stockings and black caps, made a hand-some group. The Memphis Reds were attired in their uniforms of blue, with attired in their uniforms of blue, with red trimmings and belts and stockings and white caps. Both nines were in fine condition, and considerable rivalry existed between these two parties, each having won a game over the other, and the championship of the State being dependent on the winning of the game. The Nashvilles were strengthened by two professional players. The feeling before the opening of the game, however, was slightly in favor of the Nashville boys, their friends backing them with small odds.

The game was called at 3:30 o'clock with the Reds at the bat. Byrd opened the contest by making his first on three strikes and passed ball, stealing second and third bases. Maloughney retired on a fly to Weakley, who don't know how to must a ball. Raja brought in Byrd on his hit to right field, stole second and got his third on Strief's short hit to Phinney. Crone hit a fly to Bennett and put out Strief, making a double play and leaving Raja on third a double play and leaving Raja on third Nashvilles.—Bennett got his first on six balls, his second on Kelly's short hit and stole third. Kelly stole second. Sullivan reached his first on three strikes but forced Bennett out at the home plate. Kelly stole his third and reached home on a passed ball. Carroll's hit to right brought home Sullivan and Phinney. Carroll stole second and third bases and scored on Weakley's three-base hit to left field. Smith struck out and McKay retired the nine by a fly to Bond, leaving Weakley on third base.

Reds.—Novitsky retired after three attempts to hit the ball. Sullivan got his second on a wild throw to Bennett, and got third on a passed ball, when he was left by Bond, who sawed the wind.

Nathvilles.—Hudspath accomplished the remarkable feat of making three bases on three strikes and a passed ball, and scored by stealing home. Bennett swas thrown out of first on three strikes. Kelly was given first base on six balls, stole second and third, but failed to reach home, Sullivan being thrown out at first on three strikes, and Phinney knocking a SECOND INNING.
